BLT Launches Junction at North Seven in Norwalk, A New Social Destination Offering Food and Drinks in Former Warehouse

Norwalk Community Invited to the New Space for Grand Opening on May 2nd

STAMFORD, CT – April 25, 2019 – This week Building and Land Technology (BLT) will officially open Junction at North Seven, a newly transformed former warehouse, launching this exciting new space by offering the best craft beers, specialty cocktails and food vendors the area has to offer. The highly anticipated Grand Opening will take place at 87 Glover Avenue, Norwalk from 5-11 PM on this Thursday, May 2, 2019. BLT is inviting the Norwalk community to visit and enjoy Junction at North Seven, which is an important component of the urban community environment the developer is creating, along with new luxury apartments and modern Class A offices. Junction at North Seven is conveniently located right across the street from the Merritt 7 Station, with easy access to I-95 and the Merritt Parkway.

“We imagined North Seven as a transit-oriented mixed-use urban community, with apartments like The Curb and One Glover, modern office spaces, and social gathering places. Junction at North Seven brings an energetic social space to the community, offering a unique place to relax, unwind and meet friends and neighbors,” said Carl R. Kuehner, Chairman of BLT. “We continue to evolve our Live, Work and Play concepts across our portfolio of developments in Connecticut,” Kuehner added. BLT has a strong track record of activating its developments through a wide array of events and programming, a prominent example being the firm’s Harbor Point project in Stamford.

More information about Junction at North Seven is available at <https://www.junctionnorthseven.com>. Starting May 2, the indoor beer garden and food hall will be open Wednesdays through Fridays from 5pm to 11pm. BLT is contemplating future programming for Junction at North Seven and anticipates announcing new ideas to follow or supplement the food and beverage concept at launch.
