Jim Dray Joins Thornton Tomasetti as Chief Information Officer

(New York, New York – February 26, 2018) – Thornton Tomasetti, the international engineering firm, announces that Jim Dray has joined the firm as Chief Information Officer. He has more than 30 years of information technology experience in the architecture, engineering and construction, environmental and energy development industries in the U.S. and Europe.

Based in New York, Dray will be responsible for all IT operations at Thornton Tomasetti, including infrastructure, network services and security, end-user support and application management. He will also play a key role in the development and implementation of the firm's IT strategy, ensuring that design technologies and business systems align with the organizational goals and objectives. Dray will work closely with leadership to accelerate opportunities to bring new technologies to increase efficiency and innovation and better serve the firm's clients across the globe.

Prior to joining Thornton Tomasetti, Dray was a corporate vice president of information technology at AECOM, where he oversaw the strategic use of technology for business worldwide. He also served as the chief information officer for AECOM's construction services group, and chief technology officer for its environmental division.

Dray holds a master's degree in business administration from Harvard Business School in Boston, Massachusetts, and a bachelor's degree in cognitive psychology from Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut.

Executive Quotes

Thomas Z. Scarangelo, P.E., chairman and CEO, Thornton Tomasetti

"Jim is a natural addition to Thornton Tomasetti, a firm that strives to be the global driver of change and innovation in the AEC industry. Technology plays a significant role within the company, and Jim will help the firm use its tech tools efficiently, improving connectivity and functionality that will enable us to expand our operational capabilities and produce better results for our clients."
